

CRANDALL & KATT REPRESENTS VICTIMS OF MENINGITIS OUTBREAK

Crandall & Katt currently represents dozens of people who were injured or lost loved ones in the public health catastrophe that arose from the production and distribution of contaminated steroids, which were eventually injected into victims' bodies in 2012. On behalf of these clients we are working closely with other attorneys around the country to hold various parties responsible for this deadly outbreak, including New England Compounding Pharmacy and other companies and individuals who share responsibility for these injuries and deaths. Patrick Fennell, a Crandall & Katt attorney who leads our Mass Tort Litigation Group, is on a seven-member Plaintiffs' Steering Committee appointed by the United States District Court in Boston to coordinate pretrial proceedings for all cases filed around the country that have been consolidated in the Multi District Litigation in Boston. For more information please contact Mr. Fennell at 540-342-2000.
